Introduction

"The University as Text: My Itinerary through Texts, Teaching and Translation" looks at the university as more than just a place for teaching and research. It presents the university as a space where ideas, knowledge, and experiences are shared and discussed. The lecture focuses on three important areas: Texts, Teaching, and Translation, and shows how they help us learn, think critically, and understand different cultures and ideas.

The University as Text:
My Itinerary through Texts, Teaching and Translation

Key Takeaways

1

The University is a Living Intellectual Space

Not just a place for teaching, research, and certification, but a space shaped by ideas, culture, dialogue and responsibility.

2

Texts Preserve and Question Knowledge

Reading should help us examine different perspectives, power, representation and hidden assumptions.

3

Teaching Should Be Based on Dialogue

Questioning, discussion, participation, evidence-based reasoning and respectful disagreement are key.

4

Translation Connects Cultures and Knowledge

It allows ideas, regional literature, indigenous knowledge and marginalised voices to cross linguistic and cultural boundaries.
